

Ian's trip to London

On Wednesday afternoon I packed my suitcase, have my dinner and a shower, I had a cup of tea before going to bed.

On Thursday morning I had some breakfast, then my support worker Matthew and myself walk to the bus stop. once we got to Tower Ramparts in Ipswich we got on to another bus to the Railway Station.

When Matthew and myself got to the station we walked to a café for a cup of tea before going on the train, because we had to wait for the train to arrive. Once we got on the train I was looking at my books before we got to London Liverpool Street.

Once there we walked up to this Central Park Hotel, we booked our rooms, because we left the tickets for the show and reference number at home, but we had help from the support worker at home to scan it through to Matthew's mobile phone.

Before the show we went to the pub for lunch.

Apart from that Matthew and myself got the to the Lyceum Theatre just in time to see the Lion King, apparently, we got there early in time to take our seats before the show started at 7:30 pm.

The show was good and the costumes was absolutely brilliant and colourful, I thought the whole part of the show was fantastic and it made me happy watching it and singing along.

Matthew and myself were so tired that night we decided to have a cup of tea before it was time to go to sleep.
